RADAR ASSEMBLY/CHECKOUT FACILITY,
RANCHO BOYEROS MILITARY CAMP SOUTH, CUBA

1. A Radar Assembly and Checkout Facility (Figure 1) has been identified at Rancho Boyeros Military Camp South on recent Old Head photography [REDACTED]. The Camp is enclosed by a security fence and is situated in western Cuba at 22-59-19N 082-25-30W, 2.3 nautical miles (nm) north-northwest of Santiago de las Vegas, and 1.2 nm west of Jose Marti International Airfield [REDACTED].

25X1A [REDACTED] The Facility is in the western portion of the camp. It is separately secured and contains four warehouse-type buildings and six vehicle/equipment sheds. Parking spaces were delineated in the area between [REDACTED] 25X1D

25X1A 2. Photography of [REDACTED] revealed two SIDE NET radars, each with two associated support vans; two FLAT FACE radars; one unassembled probable height finder radar with two associated vans; at least eight additional support vans; and four van trucks (Figure 2). One of the SIDE NET radars was probably there on [REDACTED] 25X1D

25X1D 3. An unassembled BAR LOCK radar with an adjacent crane were at the facility (Figure 3) on [REDACTED] Seven van trucks were in the administration area on that date. 25X1D

25X1D 4. The eastern portion of the installation includes a large crescent-shaped probable administration building, two vehicle/equipment sheds (constructed since [REDACTED] six barracks/ 25X1D headquarters buildings, and two small support buildings. A guard shack was erected at the main entrance to the installation subsequent to [REDACTED] 25X1D

25X1D 5. Two shop-type buildings and four support buildings are in the central portion of the installation. On [REDACTED] surfacing was underway on a rectangular probable vehicle/equipment parking apron or athletic court. An area at the southern end of the central portion had been cleared since [REDACTED] 25X1D

25X1D 6. A probable barracks area in a midstage of construction is at the northwest corner of the installation, just outside the perimeter fence. At least 12 barracks-type buildings and six support buildings were under construction in that area.
